WHAT BALTIMORE OFFERS TO MANUFACTURERS.

(a) Location; (b) Manufacturing Center; (c) Labor; (d) Raw Material; (e) Fuel; (f) Power; (g) Tax Exemptions; (h) Smooth Highways; (i) Railroad Sidings; (j) Financial Institutions; (k) Sympathetic Municipal Government; (l) Favorable Freight Rates; (m) Factory Sites; (n) Industrial Buildings; (o) Fire Prevention Equipment; (p) Fine Sewerage System; (q) Organized Local Cooperation; (r) Manufacturers Organized Among Themselves.

LOCATION:

Midway of the Atlantic Coast; on a meridian of longitude west of New York and Philadelphia; in a zone of moderate climatic changes; close enough to the North to absorb its enterprising way; close enough to the South to be part and parcel of the best phases of its life. It is a seaport city with wonderful inland transportation connections.

MANUFACTURING CENTER:

The city is a big and important industrial center. Its industries are varied. General distress seldom afflicts its people. Manufacturing is so miscellaneous in its character that depression in any one line does not spread itself far afield. This wide diversity of manufacturing is evidenced by the following list of leading industries. This list includes those lines which are notably active here in large measure:

Iron and Steel in various forms; Rails; Car Wheels; Ship-building and Repairs; Clothing—including Men's and Boys' and General Underwear; Middy Blouses and Pajamas; Women's Garments; Tin and Sheet Iron Products; Black Sheets; Canned Goods, including Meats, Vegetables and Sea Food; Tin Cans; Chemicals and Acids; including Fertilizers; Sugar Refining;

Slaughtering and Meat Packing; Tobacco; Straw Hats, Hats and Caps; Cotton Duck and Print Goods; Enamelled Ware; Shirts and Overalls; Ladies' Apparel; Millinery and Lace Goods; Copper-Smelting; Copper Pigs, Rods, Sheets, Tubes; Oil Refining; Olive Oil Refining; Commercial Alcohol; Umbrellas; Drugs and Preparations; Licorice; Paints and Varnishes; Bakery Products; Candy and Confectionery; Mill Work; Hardwoods; Machinery; Spices; Structural Iron; Paving and Roofing Material; Shoes; Bricks; Belting; Harness and Saddlery; Boxes (wood and paper) and Barrels Furniture; Talking Machine Cabinets; Bottles and Glassware; Cotton and Burlap Bags; Ice Cream Products; Stone and Monument Work; Mattress and Spring Beds; Aeroplane Propellers; Veneering.

VOLUME OF BUSINESS:

With more than 150,000 operatives engaged in industrial work, the output of the factories approximates a billion dollars a year.

LABOR:

Labor is plentiful. It is wide-ranged in its experience. The sources of supply are satisfactory. Strikes are so inconsequential as to be almost negligible. The foreign elements here are mostly of the better grade with a ready tendency towards American standards. The ground-rent system enables the laborer to buy his own home on easy terms; for which reason a very large proportion of Baltimore laborers are home-owners. They are taxpayers. They are fixed units in the community. As a consequence they are steady and contented and not easily swayed by senseless agitation. The city is not committed to the closed-shop. Female help is available in large numbers. Unskilled help is plentiful.

RAW MATERIAL:

No city is better located to secure advantageously its raw material. There are fine water connections with the Southern States along the Atlantic Coast. These are sufficiently near to make lumber, cotton, naval stores and all the miscellaneous raw materials of that section readily accessible at low transportation costs. Moreover, the rail connections with that section are excellent, with freight rates favorably affect by water competition. In reaching forth into Pennsylvania, Ohio and other States of the Middle West—Baltimore enjoys a pronounced differential which enables her to secure her raw material from those sections promptly and at costs below any Atlantic Coast competition. Baltimore is extraordinarily well located when it comes to transporting raw material from Central America, South America or Europe. A fine harbor, a fine channel, cheap terminal costs, swift movements of cargoes—all, together, make possible the landing in Baltimore of raw material at costs that defy competition on the part of any big Atlantic seaboard city: Petroleum comes from Mexico and from the Southwest; dolomites and limestones are very close; copper smelting on a large scale is here; steel, tin and black sheets are part of the city's output.

(See also Chapter IV, Sub-head, "Lower Freight Rates to Middle West.")

FUEL:

Baltimore is almost in the very heart of the Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia coal fields. Freight costs for hauling coal give us definite competitive advantages. Besides, there is purchasable from our cluster of oil establishments, an abundance of fuel oil at reasonable prices. Coke is made within fifteen miles of the city.

POWER:

Electric power is available, being derived from a big hydraulic plant on the Susquehanna River and transmitted to customers through the Consolidated Gas & Electric Company, which is under the supervision of the Public Service Commission. The rates for electricity are below those of any city on the Atlantic Seaboard.

TAX EXEMPTIONS:

Neither the City nor State levies any tax on the machinery, stocks on hand or raw material of manufacturers.

SMOOTH HIGHWAYS:

Baltimore has added more smooth streets, proportionately to her area, than has any large city in the country. Her highways are ideal for efficient and economic hauling.

RAILROAD SIDINGS:

The city's industries are so distributed and the various railroads have so extended their lines, that it is easy to find a location where a railroad siding is readily available and at the same time put the factory within easy access to the water-front.

A municipally controlled BELT LINE RAILROAD connects all the major trunk line systems.

BANKS:

The rapid progress of Baltimore, as a manufacturing center, has developed financial institutions in the city commensurate with the demands of each growing industrial period. Hundreds of millions of industrially invested capital have flowed into Baltimore within the past eight years; and in order to meet the big needs, bank consolidations and expansions have followed as an imperative consequence. Baltimore's recognized position as one of the country's greatest manufacturing cities has caused the banks and trust companies to specialize on industrial financing. Coincidentally, there has come into being a larger local predisposition to invest in industrial securities.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT:

The city officials are distinctly sympathetic to industrial development. The same spirit which now stimulates Baltimoreans generally in favor of manufacturing enterprises has extended itself into every department of the municipal service.

FREIGHT RATES:

Baltimore is wonderfully situated in the matter of freight rates, whether it be to bring raw material in or to send finished products out. The city is midway of the Atlantic Coast—reaching effectually to the South and North. Being on the inward bend of the Atlantic Coast, the city stands inland on a meridian of longitude further west than Boston, New York or Philadelphia. This happy middle location on the coast and westward location (west of her chief Atlantic rivals) gives her lower freights to many of the best markets, by reason of shorter distance alone. Baltimore, in freight rates, can compete with New York City as far east as Syracuse. It can compete with Philadelphia as far east as Scranton. When it comes to the Middle West (beginning at Altoona, Pennsylvania,) or with the South in its entirety, Baltimore can beat New York and Philadelphia by a very substantial freight difference.

In order that this can be readily understood, it will be well to note the comparative railroad distances. The table below will disclose why Baltimore enjoys such superior freight advantages over other Atlantic Seaboard cities:

City.	To Balto. Miles	To Phila. Miles	To N. Y. Miles

FACTORY SITES:

Good land, well-located, can be procured at fair prices. There are factory sites of sufficient variance in character and location to suit the needs of any industry; on rail, on water, on both or on neither. Manufacturing in Baltimore is not congested into any one district. It is scattered. All sections carry a substantial proportion. This spreading out of industries has made possible the development of conveniently distributed labor residential districts. Labor is thus enabled to live close to its place of work.

BEE HIVE INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS:

Baltimore has developed a series of fine industrial buildings, in which a wide variety of manufacturing operations is housed, and where the operations are conducted under wonderfully favorable conditions. Floor area, large and small, is available. The features of these buildings are: close proximity to transportation; heat, light and power furnished; splendid buildings, solid in their structure and within walking distance of labor residential sections.

FIRE PREVENTION:

Not only is the general fire fighting service of the city of an excellent and up-to-date class; but the city, in its main business section, is furnished with a very efficient high pressure service.

SEWERAGE:

Baltimore's sewerage system ranks equal with the best in the world.

ORGANIZED LOCAL CO-OPERATION:

The trend of buyers towards Baltimore has been accentuated by the rapid multiplication of factories during the last few years. Millions of outside capital have been added to the local money in the development of a wide diversity of manufactured articles. The Merchants and Manufacturers Association, in a recently published compilation, astonished even Baltimoreans themselves with the numerous miscellany of commodities made in this city. When it is recalled that there are over 150,000 laborers engaged in manufacturing activities with an output approaching the billion dollar mark, it can be seen that Baltimore is an important buying center to those who buy direct from factories. Big industrial interests from the North and the West are establishing factories in Baltimore at such rapid pace that it is occasioning alarm among Baltimore's competitors. Manufacturers realize that Baltimore's strategical position for railroad distribution; her nearness to raw material centers; her easy access to the source of fuel, and her wonderful facilities for overseas trade, give her an industrial advantage which no American city can surpass.

The Merchants & Manufacturers Association is the most active organized body in protecting and promoting the factories after they are established in Baltimore. It is also active in the work of attracting factories to Baltimore.

The Association is so organized that it functions effectively with all agencies which specialize in industrial development and industrial promotion. It is a member of the federated body of Baltimore civic and business organizations.

MANUFACTURERS ORGANIZED AMONG THEMSELVES:

In order to produce effective co-operation among kindred industries themselves, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association has organized and is operating, as one of its functions, group meetings and constructive planning among the following nineteen groups:

Food and Kindred Products; Miscellaneous Textiles and Products; Clothing (Men and Women's); Miscellaneous Wearing Apparel; Millinery and Laces; Iron and Steel and Their Products; Lumber and Its Manufactures; Leather and Its Finished Products; Paper and Printing; Beverages; Chemicals and Allied Products; Fertilizers and Heavy Chemicals; Stone and Glass Products; Metal Products (Other than Iron and Steel); Tobacco Manufacturers; Vehicles for Land Transportation; Ship-building; Miscellaneous (This is subdivided).

CHAPTER II.

WHAT BALTIMORE OFFERS TO WHOLESALESALE AND JOBBERS.

(a) Recognized Jobbing Center; (b) Effective Method of Bringing Buyers to Baltimore; (c) Shipping by Trucks; (d) Jobbing Popularity;

(e) Fine Salesmen; (f) Near to Sources of Supply; (g) Why Baltimore Can Out-Compete Her Rivals.

RECOGNIZED JOBBING CENTER:

Baltimore has long been recognized as one of the biggest and most satisfactory wholesale and jobbing markets in the country. Its jobbing houses are of a miscellaneous type, and the method of doing business in Baltimore has always assured to buyers a maximum of results for a minimum of costs. Under the guidance of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association, which has a practice of paying the traveling costs to merchants who buy a stipulated total of goods in this city, a vast jobbing trade has been developed and is in the constant and encouraging increase. Baltimore's jobbing houses are classed as among the best and most reliable in the United States.

EFFECTIVE METHOD OF BRINGING BUYERS TO BALTIMORE:

The Merchants and Manufacturers Association conducts a Wholesale Merchants Rebate Bureau, whereby over 200,000 pieces of advertising matter relative to Baltimore as a jobbing market are circulated throughout the territory which our jobbers are cultivating. This service arranges to pay the fare one or both ways to those visiting merchants who come to Baltimore and buy a given minimum of merchandise from the various associates of this Bureau. Thousands of Merchants are thus attracted to this city from different sections of the country and a big business developed.

In many cases, where the out-of-town merchant is unable to come to Baltimore and take advantage of the transportation refund, the rebate folder serves as a guide and is used by the merchant as a classified purchasing list. The result is that the houses whose names appear in the folder receive the road-order and mail-order business of many who do not come to the city.

SHIPPING BY TRUCKS:

In addition to the excellent railroad service provided by the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Western Maryland, the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis, the Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad systems, Baltimore is meshed in with Maryland's nationally famous good roads system. These roads radiate in directions which lead right into the finest imaginable jobbing territories. The perfection of the roads makes possible the linking up of Baltimore, through the operation of automobile trucks, with hundreds of good buying towns which otherwise would be inaccessible. The trucks give Baltimore a commanding advantage over her rivals. Besides the railroads and trucks, all parts, nearly, of the state of Maryland and large portions of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida are served by direct and frequent boat service from Baltimore.

JOBGING POPULARITY:

Baltimore's reputation for the "square deal" has not only given her an exceptional prestige and leadership throughout the South, but has opened up profit-yielding territories in Southern and Western Pennsylvania, Southern and Eastern Ohio and the whole of West Virginia.

FINE SALESMEN:

The city's long experience and eminence in the jobbing trade has developed a large and varied line of expert traveling salesmen who are exceptionally valuable, not only because of their natural genius, but also because of their particular knowledge of the territory and the people into which Baltimore trading enters successfully.

NEAR TO THE SOURCES OF SUPPLY:

Baltimore is peculiarly well-placed in her relation to the numerous factories from which jobbers buy. She is able to negotiate the purchase and transportation of stocks, on a basis and at a cost which will enable her to compete effectually with any rival which logically can be considered as a rival. Baltimore is closer to ALL sources of supply than is any city in this section of the country. Some other city may be closer to some one or two nearby sources of particular lines; but Baltimore is closer to more different lines. Moreover, the factories of Baltimore make over 2,000 different commodities—the greater number of which are staple items in a well-stocked jobbing establishment.

This same advantage of location gives her advantages in the dispatch and cost of delivery when it comes to selling stocks to the outlying customers. The figures in proof of this can be seen by reference to the chapter on "What Baltimore Offers to Manufacturers;" Sub-head "Lower Freight Rates."

WHY BALTIMORE CAN OUT-COMPETE HER RIVALS:

Despite the fact that Baltimore is in competition with other cities which are aggressive workers in the jobbing field, Baltimore's location gives her exceptional freight advantages which assure her an effective grasp on a wide range of territory. Take, for instance, our competition with NEW YORK. We can reach as far north as Buffalo and Syracuse on equal freight terms with New York. In all that Pennsylvania territory south of Williamsport and west of Reading (including Reading) Baltimore's freight rates are lower than New York. In western Pennsylvania, Ohio and the South, Baltimore's advantages are sharper and more conclusive.

In competition with PHILADELPHIA, we are on a parity in all that territory as far north as Buffalo, as far east as Albany and Scranton and as far south as Harrisburg. From Altoona, westward and southward, our lower freight rates give us a superior position.

In competition with PITTSBURGH, we reach out, on a parity, as far east as Huntington, Pennsylvania, and as far south as the extreme south-western projection of Virginia. All east of those points and all south of Kentucky are Baltimore's territory by virtue of lower freight rates.

In competition with CLEVELAND, we are natural superiors by reason of freight rates, in all of Pennsylvania from Johnstown eastward; in West Virginia eastward from Clarksburg; and in nearly all of the South below Kentucky.

In competition with CINCINNATI, we are necessarily dominant, as a result of lower freight rates, in all that section, east of a line running southward from Buffalo to Pittsburgh; to Parkersburg, West Virginia; Clifton Forge, Virginia; Asheville, North Carolina; Walhalla, South Carolina; Rome, Georgia; thence across the middle of Alabama to Vicksburg, Mississippi.

In competition with CHICAGO, our more favorable freight rates give Baltimore the control of all of that section east and south of Youngstown, Ohio; Parkersburg, West Virginia; Bristol, Tennessee; Knoxville, Kentucky; Birmingham, Alabama, and Vicksburg, Mississippi.

In competition with ST. LOUIS, our freight rate advantages guarantee us a superior position in all that rich territory east of Sandusky and Columbus, Ohio; and all that section southeastward from an imaginary line running from the western boundary of West Virginia past Chattanooga, to Jackson and Vicksburg, Mississippi.

CHAPTER III.

WHAT BALTIMORE OFFERS RETAIL MERCHANTS:

(a) Successful Retail City; (b) Cooperation Helps to Reduce Costs; (c) Rapidly Building Up a Purchasing Power; (d) Nearby Territory; (e) Factories and Jobbing Houses Here; (f) Deliveries.

SUCCESSFUL RETAIL CITY:

The retail trade in Baltimore is in especially healthy condition. There is a spirit of co-operation among merchants, inspired and led by the Retail Bureau of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association. The city has a large number of big department stores and an exceptionally fine list of "specialty" shops from which purchasers can satisfy their wants at prices which compare more than favorably with the average price level of other cities. Baltimore is the magnet of a large number of "shoppers" from Washington, lower Pennsylvania, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia and the Carolinas. A fine variety of wares, plus the ability to make quick and dependable deliveries, make the city a very desirable market.

COOPERATION HELPS TO REDUCE COSTS:

Retail merchants are not operating here in haphazard, cut-throat, expensive fashion. They are well-organized and in fine co-operative spirit as members of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association. This close affiliation is not for purposes of price-fixing. The value of organization has shown itself in cutting out useless and costly operations; reducing the demands and calls which absorb money; protecting the business against tax burdens and public impositions; guarding against weak credit accounts and various other savings aggregating much in their ultimate total.

RAPIDLY BUILDING UP A PURCHASING POWER:

The city is admittedly one of the country's leading industrial centers. Already there are substantially more than one hundred and fifty thousand persons engaged in the manufacturing business alone. Our population is 733,826. These factories are so varied in nature that depression in any one line does not affect the city very seriously. The fact that Baltimore is a "many-industry" rather than a "one-industry" city, has enabled it to escape the serious experience which has marked the record of retailers in whose centers where some one, big, dominant industry has shut down. Even during the most depressed periods, Baltimore has maintained a very satisfactory average of retail activity.

NEARBY TERRITORY:

Baltimore draws largely from Washington. A big volume of retail buying is done by persons who live temporarily in Washington. Baltimore's variety and superiority of stocks makes that inevitable. There is no large nearby city to rival Baltimore in the major portion of the area embracing Maryland, Southern Pennsylvania, West Virginia and a part of Virginia. Fine automobile highways, electric and steam railway service and a far-reaching series of steamboat lines help to bring into the city thousands of out-of-town shoppers and, at the same time, make possible quick deliveries of the various goods purchased.

FACTORIES AND JOBBING HOUSES HERE:

There are numerous factories in Baltimore, representing, in the variety of commodities they make, more than 2,000 different articles. In clothing and dresses and miscellaneous cotton goods garments, Baltimore is one of the leading producers. A wide diversity of retail stocks is procurable right here in Baltimore factories. In addition to that, retailers here have at their very doors some of the best general and special jobbing houses in the United States. Nor is that all. Many articles not fabricated in Baltimore and not handled by the local jobbing houses, have special manufacturers' representatives in this city with stocks in warehouses ready for immediate delivery.

DELIVERIES:

The finely improved streets and the closely-knitted lay-out of the city and its environs, make deliveries not only easy to handle, but assure a low cost in the up-keep of equipment.

SOME ESSENTIALS TO FOREIGN TRADE:

In order that any city can enter successfully into the big and complex field of overseas operations called "Foreign Trade" it is essential that said city should have, (1) An ample harbor, with at least 35 feet in depth of channel; (2) Piers and warehouses, along with facilities for loading and unloading; (3) Railroad connections, convenient to the water-front, radiating out into territory which itself exports and imports in large volume; (4) Freight rates, by rail, which make it interesting to send goods directly to that port; (5) Freight forwarders, skilled in the art of coralling cargoes and influential in directing the cargoes to their own particular port; (6) Ship lines, reaching out to the various leading trade centers of the world, operating on regular and dependable schedules; (7) Financial institutions, ready, willing and anxious to handle and encourage foreign trade accounts; (8) Harbor conditions so constituted that ship operations in and out of that harbor will be on a comparatively low cost basis; (9) A seaboard location which makes the interconnected boat and railroad mileage reasonably short as contrasted with the status of other ports; (10) An organized body of aggressive business men engaged in creating a local foreign trade atmosphere, and who specialize in developing, protecting and expanding every factor which has a tendency to build up and maintain foreign trade in the port.

BALTIMORE IS POSSESSED OF EACH OF THOSE TEN ESSENTIALS IN SUCH FORM AND IN SUCH MEASURE AS TO CONSTITUTE HER ONE OF THE GREATEST EXPORT AND IMPORT CENTERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

AN AMPLE HARBOR

Baltimore possesses one of the finest harbors in the United States, with large anchorage areas. The channel is 35 feet deep, right up to the piers. The tide variation is only fourteen inches. The harbor is well-protected against storms and is never closed except during brief periods of exceptionally cold weather. It is a harbor with a wonderfully fine record as to the small number of accidents.

PIERS AND WAREHOUSES:

Baltimore harbor comprises 127 miles of deep-water frontage, 45 miles of which are developed with water front warehouse space of 1,081,775 sq. ft.; covered pier space of 1,409,126 sq. ft.; open pier space of 998,104 sq. ft.; and a terminal storage capacity of 1,909,920 sq. ft.—together with the most modern accommodations for the handling of grain, coal, oil, sulphur, fertilizer and other specialized shipments.

The municipal government is equipped to finance the construction of up-to-date piers, with the latest machinery and facilities, and to offer the same for lease to shipping companies or others interested in foreign trade operations.

Baltimore's facilities for the handling of bulk grain cargoes consist of 7 modern elevators with a total capacity of 10,000,000 bushels, the port having in the new 5,000,000 bushel elevator of the Pennsylvania Railroad the largest plant of its kind in existence. A record was recently established by the Western Maryland Railway when 200,000 bushels of rye, of which 64,000 bushels were in bags, were loaded in 48 hours. The Western Maryland will add to its total storage capacity.

RAILROADS RUN TO THE WATERFRONT:

Three big trunk line railroads carry their tracks to the waterfront where they have large warehouse terminals, grain elevators and highly efficient coal-loading apparatus. Cargoes can be loaded and unloaded directly from ship to railroad car, or vice versa; and loading or unloading can be conducted simultaneously with lighters — thus making possible a quick turn around of the ship. Cargoes intended for export or import, when handled through and over these railroad piers, are not made to pay any terminal charges.

LOWER RATES TO THE MIDDLE WEST:

(For rates, see similar title under Chapter I).

Baltimore is nearer the center of population of the United States than Philadelphia, New York or Boston. It is nearer the centers of the greatest proportion of improved farm lands which are located in order of rank in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri; with the leading corn states as follows: Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska, and Ohio, and the centers of largest wheat production in the Western and Middle Western States. Baltimore is closely connected by short distance rail routes with the chemical plants of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio; also with the pig iron and steel centers in order of rank in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, New York and Indiana. It is also connected with leading centers of the following industries: Cars and car repair parts in Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio; electrical machinery in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey; carriages and wagons in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois; automobiles in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and New York; with the coal mining centers in Pennsylvania, Illinois, West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana. In fact, 43.6 per cent. of products manufactured in this country, according to the United States census are located in states which are directly connected with Baltimore by shorter rail routes than other ports. It is also advantageously situated to the large coal fields of Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The short haul from the great Middle Western territory, manufacturing a large part of the country's exports, makes possible favorable inland freight rates on export and import traffic routed through this port. The three railroads with large termini in Baltimore (the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania and the Western Maryland,) give direct connection with the great industrial, agricultural and mining sections of the country.

GROUP OF AGGRESSIVE FREIGHT FORWARDERS:

The rapid growth of Baltimore's foreign trade, since the Great War, has attracted to the city some of the biggest, most skilled and most successfully experienced freight forwarders in the United States. These houses not only know all the requirements and intricacies of the business; but they are prompt, efficient and dependable in their service.

MANY SHIP LINES TO THE WORLD'S LEADING PORTS:

The port is served by many regular steamship line services controlled by companies which operate a large number of steamers to more than 100 foreign ports. In addition to these overseas line vessels, the port is served by coastwise steamship lines regularly trading between Baltimore and the principal ports on our Atlantic and Pacific seaboard. These overseas and coastwise steamship services, transporting general cargoes of miscellaneous freight, together with the large number of tramp steamers and industrial carriers of bulk cargoes of ore, oil, sulphur, fertilizers, coal, grain, etc., constantly trading to and from the port, constitute the entire shipping activities of Baltimore.

Among some of the major ports reached by direct service from Baltimore are the following: Abo, Acapulco, Alexandria, Algiers, Amsterdam, Antwerp, Arroyo, Balboa, Baltic Ports, Barcelona, Belfast, Bergen, Bonny, Bordeaux, Bremen, Brest, Bristol, Buenos Aires, Calcutta, Cardenas, Cherbourg, Christiania, Cienfuegos, Colombo, Constantinople, Copenhagen, Corinto, Cork, Cristobal, Cuba, Danzig, Dublin, Dunkirk, Gefle, Genoa, Glasgow, Gothenburg, Guantanamo, Hamburg, Havana, Havre, Hawaiian Islands, Helsinki, Hernosand, Helsingborg, Hong Kong, Hull, Jamaica, W. I., Kalmar, Karachi, Karlskrona, Kobe, La Pallice, Libau, Leith, Liverpool, London, Londonderry, Los Angeles, Lubeck, Madras, Malmo, Manchester, Manzanillo, Marseilles, Mayaguez, Montevideo, Naples, Norrkoping, Neuquén, Oran, Panama Canal, Piraeus, Ponce, Portland, Ore.; Progreso, Revel, Reykjavik, Riga, Rio de Janeiro, Rotterdam, Sagua La Grande, St. Nazaire, Salonika, San Francisco, San Jose, San Juan, Santiago, Santos, Seattle, Shanghai, Smyrna, Stettin, Stockholm, Tacoma, Talcahuano, Tampico, Trollenborg, Uppsala, Valencia, Valparaiso, Vancouver, Vera Cruz, West African Ports, West Coast of South America, Yokohama.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS SPECIALIZING ON FOREIGN TRADING:

The financial institutions of Baltimore and other money centers are fully cognizant of Baltimore's present important status in foreign trade operations and they clearly foresee the inevitable big expansion in that trade which is already manifesting itself. In order to take advantage of the foreign trade activities, local institutions are putting in foreign trade departments under the direction of experienced foreign trade financiers.

PORT IN WHICH SHIPS CAN BE OPERATED MOST CHEAPLY:

Exports and imports pass through the port without congestion or delay and with lower costs than is the case in New York. The turn around of steamers costs less in this port than in New York, recent comparisons showing an average saving of more than $4,000 per vessel each time for similar ships and cargoes in favor of Baltimore, and even this does not take into consideration provisioning in this port, nor the more rapid turn around of vessels with the financial saving that this implies.

The absence of dockage assessments and wharfage charges on freight brought to the port by rail, the free delivery of less-than-carload shipments paying a small minimum rail charge to any point in the harbor, are advantages which should influence operators in assigning vessels and exporters and importers in routing shipments.

ABUNDANT SHIP REPAIR YARDS:

There is no port better equipped to take care of ship repair work efficiently and quickly. Right inside of the harbor lies several big shipbuilding plants, with all the facilities of the most modern plant, prepared to handle with dispatch any phase of repair work on any ship.

BUNKER AND CARGO COAL CAN BE QUICKLY LOADED:

The coal record of the port of Baltimore stands unrivaled. The largest and best equipped pier for the loading of coal cargoes in the world, installed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and located at Curtis Bay, a branch of Baltimore Harbor, has established a record of 3,684 tons loaded into a vessel in one hour. The total coal loading capacity of the port is estimated at 80,000 tons in ten hours. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Western Maryland are also equipped with modern coal-loading machinery.

MILEAGE ADVANTAGES ON LAND AND SEA:

Baltimore is about on a parity in distance with New York and Boston to the leading east coast of South America, despite the great projection of the South American Continent to the eastward. Baltimore is much closer to the west coast of South America than any of them. Baltimore is closer to Valparaiso, Chile, than Los Angeles, Cal., is. Baltimore enjoys equal ocean freight rates with all the Atlantic seaports. Her advantage, however, lies in the shorter railroad haul between Baltimore and the Middle West and Southern cities as compared with New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

ORGANIZED BODIES WORKING TO PROMOTE FOREIGN TRADE:

The Merchants and Manufacturers Association, which is the largest business and civic body in the city, is an active factor in helping to promote and up-build foreign trade. This Association has specially constituted departments which engage in this work in divers ways. Moreover, the Association is in direct working relations with those particular agencies which are specializing in export and import matters and in the expansion of Baltimore's overseas trade. This is true as to shipping as well as to cargo movements.

BALTIMORE, DESPITE HER BIG BUSINESS, HAS PLENTY OF ROOM FOR FURTHER GROWTH AND THE MULTIPLICA- TION OF FACILITIES.

Other Atlantic Seaboard cities have almost reached their final growth of commercial development; that is, so far as convenient water facilities are concerned, BALTIMORE, on the contrary, is attracting more and more attention because of the abundance of her possibilities.

CHAPTER V.

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT BALTIMORE.

(a) Population; (b) Location; (c) Food; (d) Homes; (e) Highways; (f) Exceptionally Fine Park System; (g) Amusement Parks; (h) Street Railway Service; (i) Climate.

POPULATION:

Census (1920) 733,826. Over 150,000 persons are engaged in industrial pursuits.

LOCATION:

On the Patapsco River, a tributary of the famous Chesapeake Bay. Abundant water advantages for trade, beauty, pleasure and water sports. Beautiful homes, nestling amid a wooded environment, and fronting on picturesque rivers, are plentiful. No city is better blessed with all the elements for delightful living.

Baltimore is less than 40 miles from Washington, the Nation's Capital.

FOOD:

Baltimore is recognized as being the greatest food market in the world, being so situated that all kinds of food are procurable in season at prices ranging substantially below the average figures in other cities. It is the home of the best oysters, the best terrapin and the best wild duck in America, besides being surrounded by the finest trucking in the United States.

Baltimore's fine public market system has a national reputation.

HOMES:

In the matter of its physical construction, Baltimore has lovely homes, beautiful parks, splendid churches, handsome educational institutions, world-famous hospitals and a high standard of culture, decency and morality.

Baltimore's suburban development is concededly the most picturesque and attractive of any city in the United States. It presents more variety and more artistic possibilities than other big cities in America. Living by the laboring class is far above the average city. Neat homes, instead of tenement-house living, is the rule here. And 60 per cent of the houses are owned.

HIGHWAYS:

Baltimore has spent millions of dollars in the work of bringing her highways up to the most modern state of excellence in the matter of smoothness and durability, thereby multiplying all the advantages resulting from good streets.

The surrounding country offers an unusually attractive and varied scenery through which to enjoy delightful automobile rides—and over perfect roads.

EXCEPTIONALLY FINE PARK SYSTEM:

Baltimore's splendid park system, connected by an expansive system of handsome boulevards, is second to none in the United States. Druid Hill Park is both big and beautiful. Patterson Park is a great athletic center. Gwynn's Falls Park presents a rugged scenery suggestive of the presence of rocks and mountains. All the sports thrive. One of the best municipal golf courses in the East is at Clifton Park. Playgrounds are plentiful and helpful in their influence.

AMUSEMENT PARKS:

The city enjoys a marked diversity of amusement parks, capable of satisfying all variations in taste, even to the most captious. Bathing in artificial pools, the river or the Chesapeake Bay is readily accessible.

STREET RAILWAY SERVICE:

It is generally admitted that Baltimore has one of the best and most efficient street car services in the United States. The mileage is widespread; the cars are commodious and comfortable; the schedules are convenient; the speed is fast; the free transfers are generous, and the management is excellent.

RAILROAD INDUSTRIAL BUREAUS:

A large number of the American railroads have organized Industrial or Commercial Development Departments for the purpose of giving a practical service to those seeking industrial locations best suited to their respective needs and such departments are ready at all times to advise companies as to proper locations on their different railroad lines, giving information as to building sites, labor and civic conditions, freight rates, etc.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has a Commercial Development Department with headquarters at Baltimore embracing Industrial, Agricultural, Industrial Survey and Geological Bureaus, and Industrial Agents are located at Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Chicago. In this department practical briefs on economic plant locations are prepared without charge by a corps of trained men.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has Industrial Agents at Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

The Western Maryland Railway handles its industrial work through the Freight Traffic Department.

These different railroads have rendered good service to Baltimore's industrial growth through these departments and are at all times ready and willing to co-operate with the city's industrial departments and with companies seeking locations in and around Baltimore as well as at other points on their lines.

CLIMATE:

Baltimore health conditions are good because of favorable climatic conditions. The swings of temperature are neither wide nor disturbing. The mean annual temperature is 55.3 degrees; spring, 53.3; summer, 75.1; autumn, 57.5; winter, 35.0. The summers of Maryland are warm, and hence similar to those in other good agricultural sections of the United States. The winters are milder than in most of the Northern States, and this gives an unusually long growing season, or about 200 days between the last killing frost of spring and the first killing frost of autumn, around Baltimore.

Baltimore has an average annual precipitation of 42.68 inches, which about represents the State average, as compared to 31.5 inches in Iowa, 36.5 in Illinois, 39 in Missouri, and 38 in Ohio. Meteorologists and agriculturists agree that in sections without irrigation the annual precipitation should usually fall between 25 and 50 inches for the best results; also that precipitation must be well distributed through the crop season, as in Maryland.

"Winter sunshine" in Baltimore is an especially striking climatic feature. It equals or exceeds the winter sunshine of most northern sections of the United States, and is about double that of many sections of the Lake Region. The annual sunshine at Baltimore is 58 per cent of the possible amount.

Maryland.—The growing season, or the period intervening between the date of last killing frost of spring and the date of first killing frost of autumn, varies for several sections from about 170 to 220 days, with an average for Maryland as a whole of 185 days. The average growing season in Iowa is approximately 170 days; in Illinois, 176; in Missouri, 180; and in Ohio, 170.

Maryland has an average annual precipitation of slightly over 42 inches; Iowa, 31.5; Illinois, 36.5; Missouri, 39; and Ohio, 38. Meteorologists and agriculturists agree that in sections without irrigation the annual precipitation should usually fall between 25 and 50 inches for the best results; also that the precipitation must be well distributed through the crop seasons, as in Maryland.

are the arteries of the city, pulsating with its life's blood, sustaining it, and developing its growth.

Without an efficient railway system there can be little growth and no legitimate extensions of boundaries. Lack of facilities for necessary Suburban residence means congestion and stagnation of population in overcrowded homes in the central section.

Baltimore City has grown rapidly in population and area.

Area in sq. miles	13	31	91
Population	332,313	508,957	Estimated 750,000

In the development of Baltimore City the

has played an invaluable part by providing ready communication between desirable and delightful residential sections and the business and working districts.
